Secretary's Message

I am overjoyed to write a foreword to our College Newsletter. Priority is the foremost quality that is required to succeed in life. Setting up a goal and plunging into action are needed for anyone to achieve laurels in life. As Swamy Vivekananda says, take up only one idea of your studies. Make that one idea your life. Think of it, dream of it, live on that idea. Let the brain, muscles, nerves, every part of your body be full of that idea and just leave every other idea alone. This is the way to success and this is the way great students and scholars are produced.

Wish you all a very bright future!

Dr. M. Graham Bell,
Secretary.

Director's Message

I feel happy to see the first Newsletter of our Institution. It has been said from time immemorial that one must keep one's mind open to let new and wonderful ideas enter to learn. Everything new and useful has been created by men blessed with the power of thought and imagination. All these inventors had good imagination, right attitude and the required focus besides analytical mind. All this can be acquired if you have the will to mould yourself and the teaching fraternity in our Institution takes keen effort to guide you in the right direction. So make use of the wonderful opportunities that are available to you.

Wish you all the best in your future endeavours!

Mr. M. Thivaharan,
Director.

Principal's Message

I am highly elated and feel immense pleasure to see the blossoming of the online Newsletter which brings forth fountains of information to the multifarious readers.

It is an exhilarating experience to see the amazing growth of the college within a very short span of time. It is said that, "If you are planning for a year, sow rice; if you are planning for a decade, plant trees; if you are planning for a life time, educate people." This is what is being done in our Institution with utmost seriousness and dedication.

Wishing you all the best and may your determination lead you to greater heights!

Dr. R. Krishnaveni,
Principal.

Editor-in-chief Message

Writing a prologue for the first Newsletter is a joy which knows no bounds.

This Newsletter comes out with the amazing victory of our prestigious institution in different fields such as curricular, co-curricular and extra-curricular activities. The Principal Award and the benevolent activities of the Management prove ample testimony to the glory of this Institution.

It is no wonder that this College serves as a boon to the students of this locality. The opportunities which are available in city Colleges are available at the door steps of the students.

Wish you all the best and may your life be filled with light and happiness.

Dr. R. Shanthi,
HOD/ Department of English

Editor's Message

Beloved readers,

It is a great pride and pleasure for our college to bring out our newsletter in this context. It is an arduous task and cannot be completed without high quality academicians. I applaud the students and staff for their inspired thoughts in articles contributed by them. Commendable task has been done by the Editorial Board in planning and fabricating the newsletter. I am hopeful that this startup shall not only cultivate the feel for reading among students but also develop a creative and novel thoughts in ample measures.

Good Luck and wishing you all success in your future steps.

Dr. T. S. Shanthi,
HOD/ Department of Computer Science

Key Note

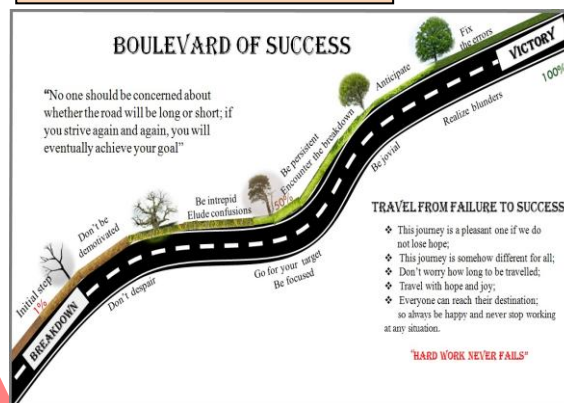

CASSIA AURICULATA – AN OVERVIEW

Globally, traditional herbal medicines play a substantial role in health-care systems, where they are utilized to treat various acute and chronic illnesses without or minimal toxicity. Herbal plants have been used as a natural medicine to treat innumerable health issues including tuberculosis, cancer, diabetes mellitus, heart diseases, wound healing, asthma, pharyngitis, hypertension etc. Plants rich in bioactive phytochemicals such as alkaloids, tannins, polyphenols and flavonoids have been commonly used to cure various ailments because of their numerous pharmacological activities. India, which is well renowned for having a diverse variety of medicinal plants and herbal medicinal methods, is regarded as a “living tradition”. Cassia auriculata, known as “avaram” in Tamil language, belongs to the Fabaceae family. Different parts of this plant, such as leaves, roots and flowers are used by the Ayurvedic practitioners owing to its various medicinal properties. Traditionally, diabetes, rheumatism, eye diseases, asthma, skin problems, abdominal disorders and urinary tract infections have been treated with the plant. Furthermore, extracts of C. auriculata have good antimicrobial properties. When any patient takes any drugs constantly and continuously it ends up with some side effects. In some cases, the intake of drugs changes the biochemistry of the urine and it may induce the crystallization of metabolic compounds of unusual morphology, which indicates the possibility that there are peculiar conditions for the formation of urinary stones. Recently, researchers conducted in vitro studies to examine the promotory/inhibitory effect of C. auriculata and found that the intake of flower extracts of C. auriculata is good for diabetic patients as it reduces the growth of urinary stone crystals. Further, in vivo studies are required in the near future to develop formulations to cure kidney stones. People are becoming more aware of traditional medicines, which is a step toward a better knowledge and application of natural plants products for human welfare.

COME OUT OF THE FAKE WORLD

In a Secondary School, it was a break time. The students were just chatting with each another. One student said that he used to play a game, where he could build a city and create a forest for the people and another pupil said, he used to play a game where he shot down the terrorist and save the country. On Hearing that, the teacher decided to teach a lesson to them. She asked the students to sit on the benches. She told them to close their eyes and just imagine as if they were travelling to the past i.e. a century ago. She said “Yes, you can see forest full of animals, feel the air without pollution and see the humans who live healthy due to the intake of healthy food”. Now imagine as if you are travelling to the future i.e. a century after. She said ‘I am not sure what you all are looking but, I am sure there will be a lot of technology without nature, risky level of pollution, global warming and the violent behaviour of humans’. So, students who read this, keep it in your mind that Yesterday is a history, Tomorrow is a mystery, Today is your day, which is God’s gift. That’s why we call it as present. Stop living in the fake world. So, try to do the things that make your future bright. MORAL: “Save Nature and Your Future”.

CACTUS PLANT

There was a garden. In that garden, there were different plants and trees such as jasmine, rose, coconut tree, cactus and sunflower. It was spring season. All the plants and trees ridiculed the cactus. Jasmine and rose criticized the cactus by saying that they both looked beautiful and colourful whereas the cactus looked green in colour. The coconut tree said that its products were used for cooking. The sunflower said that its seeds were used to make oils. The cactus was very sad. Days passed by and the seasons changed. It was summer season. All the plants and trees were very thirsty and they looked very dull. The cactus plant remained as fresh as it was in the spring season. They were very much interested in knowing the secret and asked the cactus plant the reason for its freshness. The cactus plant replied that it would never feel thirsty because of its fat leaves. Water would be stored in that leaves. The moral of the story is that everyone is endowed with special talents and is unique with his or her own skills.
